

Love Sex and the IRS

by William Van Zandt & Jane Milmore

Jon Trachtman and Leslie Arthur are out-of-work musicians who room together in New York City. To save money, Jon has capitalized on Leslie's first name, filing their tax returns listing the pair as a married couple. The day of reckoning comes when the Internal Revenue Service informs the "couple" they're going to be investigated. So who are they going to get to play the bride? And what are they going to tell Jon's mother who demands to meet her son's "new" fiancée?

"A wild farce with twists of fate, sight gags, mistaken identities and enough comic lines to fill an encyclopedia of humor."

Office Hours

by Norm Foster

What does an overweight jockey, a desperate movie producer, a gay entertainment lawyer, a philandering agent and a Week-at-a-Glance salesman have in common? Ordinarily not a whole lot, but then again this is not your ordinary Friday afternoon in six separate offices. Filled with snappy dialogue, witty repartee, hilarious predicaments, and lots and lots of laughs, Office Hours is one of Foster's funniest plays.

"The audience was almost on the floor in tears."
